Enjoy the relaxing vibes of Yamashiro Onsen's Yunogawa and Kosoyu.

Yamashiro Onsen's mascot, Yamashiro Spa Crow-kun

What is "Yunogawa" ?

Centuries ago, hot spring towns were built up around public baths. Hot spring inns lined the streets around the public bath, and visitors looking for curative springs would go to the public bath and occasionally take walks through nature during their long stays in town. This public bath was called "soyu," and the area of the town built up around it was known in the Hokuriku region as a "yunogawa." Even today, the old-fashioned hot spring culture and atmosphere lives on here in Yamashiro Onsen.

Soyu The baths at Soyu are drained and cleaned daily, before being refilled with fresh 100% hot spring water. The vaulted ceiling features large skylights, for a beautiful and refreshing atmosphere.

Kosoyu Kosoyu (or "Old Soyu") was built in Yamashiro's yunogawa in 2010. The nostalgic atmosphere extends beyond the architecture, as visitors also prepare themselves for the bath in the traditional way, for a taste of Yamashiro Onsen's history and culture.

Hazuchio-Gakudo Enjoy one-of-a-kind sweets in this distinctive building, with its atmospheric Bengara latticework, or check out the Kutaniyaki porcelain items at Ninuriya, at this must-see spot in Yamashiro's yunogawa.

An Encounter with a three-legged Crow

Some 1,300 years ago in the year 725, a famous Buddhist priest named Gyoki was on his way to the sacred Mt. Hakusan when he noticed a single crow soaking its injured wing in a pool of water to soothe the pain; this is said to have been the origin of Yamashiro Onsen. This crow is said to be the legendary three-legged crow Yatagarasu, from the myths and legends of ancient Japan.

A Open Hot Spring Baths

Visitors can enjoy the baths at hot spring inns even if they aren't overnight guests (fees apply).

B Yakuoin Onsenji Temple

This temple was built to house carved statues of the Healing Buddha and other deities, to watch over and protect the spring.

C Hattori Shrine

Giant trees rise six meters tall around this shrine, and line both sides of the hundred stone steps up to it. In winter, the white of the snow gives the shrine a quiet, otherworldly beauty.

D Onna-shozu & Otoko-shozu Springs

Onna-shozu spring features a Jizo statue in back, watching over it. The name, meaning "women's fresh water," comes from the groups of women who worked for the inns, gathering fresh water from this spring.

E Spring Source & Foot Bath

Located right near Soyu in the center of the hot spring town. Look for the statue of a crow perched on a boulder at the foot bath.

F Michibanya

Michibanya is a shop which introduces products and gives information about Yamashiro Onsen.

G Bicycle Rentals & Nuku-Mobi

Home of the Revival of Kutaniyaki porcelain

Kutaniyaki porcelain are some of Japan's most famous colored ceramics. Their history stretches back more than 350 years, to the porcelain made in Kutani Village of the Kaga Domain, during Japan's feudal era.

A number of famous one-of-a-kind Kutaniyaki porcelain were produced at this historic kiln. Well over a century after the Kutani Kiln shut down, the people at Yoshidaya revived Kutaniyaki porcelain, here in Yamashiro Onsen.

Walking through the atmospheric hot spring townscape and enjoying the beautiful artistry of Kutaniyaki porcelain is one of the greatest pleasures that Yamashiro Onsen has to offer

Ancient Kutani Kiln Exhibition Center

Iroha Soan Hut (Rosanjin's temporary residence)

He passionately carved shop signs in the hut's workshop, became absorbed in painting and calligraphy in the hut's study, and met with the gentlemen of Yamashiro Onsen around the hut's hearth. Iroha Soan Hut continues to tell the tale of Rosanjin's personality and talents to this day.

Hospitality, the secret ingredient of Yamashiro's delights.

Yamashiro is located near Hashitate Port, which is famous for the Kitamaebune trading ships that once traveled Japan. The port is also famous for its incredible seafood available all year round, delivered to Yamashiro's inns remarkably fresh.

The chefs at these inns look forward to flexing their skills in November, when crab season begins, preparing delicious dishes that help take the edge off the region's harsh winter soon to come.

The rich variety of flavors makes winter the best season of the year for seafood — food lovers have been known to visit the Hokuriku region from all over Japan in winter just for the outstanding seafood.

Junmaishu Yamashiro

Nothing goes better with seafood than local sake. This junmaishu is made by Yamashiro's local sake shop association with utmost care at every step, down to the rice and water used. Available at sake shops in town.

One of Yamashiro's most famous local sweets, Ren-no Yokan is produced at a long-established sweets shop besides the Kosoyu named Ren Eishodo.

This yokan sweet bean jelly shop was established in 1819, and still makes their yokan using only three natural ingredients: azuki beans, kanten jelly, and sugar. Their mild sweetness and clean aftertaste have earned them plenty of dedicated local fans, perhaps the best sign of their quality. Yamashiro Onsen is also home to a number of other sweets shops, all with their own unique offerings — a walk around town to try them all would make a great way to spend a day. There are also plenty of places worth checking out that offer lunch and local dishes, too.
